Sick of moaning minnies

Why is it, when old people fall over they make such a song and dance about it, rolling around, moaning, etc? When I fall over, I simply get up, dust my self down and carry on walking. Perhaps these codgers should take a leaf out of my book.

GOVERNMENT AXE RINGPIECE TAX

Labour push hard to defeat motion on stool levy

The Government has shelved plans to introduce a new tax on Britain's already beleaguered households.

A new 'toilet tax' bill, similar to a scheme which already operates in Norway, was due to have its first reading in the House early this year. If passed by Parliament, under the new laws, householders would have to pay an annual charge, in addition to the community charge, proportional to the number of times they used the lavatory.

But now, with the Government losing ground at the polls and facing growing protests against the poll tax, plans to tax us on our toilets have been shelved until after the next election.

FUSS

Tory MP for Fulchester Sunnyside, Sir Anthony Regents-Park, defended the proposed tax yesterday. "I

Sir Anthony Regents-Park -
"Sit-down visits".

don't know what all the fuss is about. The system has been long due for an overhaul. And what could possibly be more fair than a system whereby you pay according to how often you use the lavatory?"

RECORD

"There has been a lot of misinformation from the left about this proposed tax", Sir Anthony continued. "And I want to set the record straight. It has never been the Government's intention to tax people every time they use the lavatory. That would be ridiculous and a completely impractical system to operate. What we intend to do is impose a simple, standard charge payable each time a person makes a 'sit-down' visit, so to speak, rather in the same way that your phone bill is calculated".

CASSETTE

But Labour's Derek Twatt slammed the new proposals. "It's an absolute scandal and a disgrace. Under this Tory scheme an elderly, incontinent old lady with an outside lavatory living in Yorkshire could end up paying ten times as much as a rich person living in a castle with twenty toilets, who has complete control over their bowel movements. It's just one more example of the Government robbing the poor to give to the rich".

COMPACT DISC

A senior Government minister last night conceded plans for the toilet tax may have to be reviewed before being presented to Parliament next year. Among possible changes would be the introduction of a rebate for persons medically diagnosed as suffering from diarrhoea, and a standard minimum charge payable by constipated people or people with severely enlarged haemorrhoids.

RANDY WRINKLIES CAN'T GET ENOUGH!

Britain's pensioners have never had it so good - or so often!

That's the finding of a recent survey carried out by researchers at Ipswich University's Department of Old People and Sex. Their study found that an amazing 98% of people over retirement age still enjoy a healthy sex life.

SPANKING

Rather than taking it easy in their old age, pensioners spend their spare time catching up on lost time, with 7 out of 10 OAPs enjoying full sexual intercourse at least 5 times a week. And despite their age, 33% of senior citizens still experiment with rubber, bondage and spanking.

PORNOGRAPHY

A vast majority of men and women of pensionable age and above - around 93% - said they regularly obtained climax through mutual masturbation, while surprisingly only 4% of those questioned preferred to have intercourse in the 'doggy' position. One in four regularly purchased pornography featuring farmyard animals.

CALCULATOR

Dr. Boris Johnson, head of Ipswich's Faculty of Geriatric Sexual Studies, admitted that at the time of the survey only a limited sample of elderly people was available. He also admitted possible statistical inaccuracies due to his calculator not working very well.

20 THINGS YOU NEVER KNEW ABOUT RUSSIA

A little over a year ago no-one had even heard of Russia. For all we knew it was just another country somewhere in Europe. But now communist leader Michael Gorbachev has put Russia firmly on the map. It's in the papers and on the telly, and in pubs and clubs all over Britain people are talking about little else.

Love it or hate it, nowadays you simply can't ignore Russia. But what is it really like? Here are a few things you probably didn't know about the USSR.

1 Russia is by far and away the biggest country in the world. Except for Canada.

2 Despite its enormous size Russian has a relatively small population, roughly equivalent to that of Wales.

3 Russia is famous for its spies. Some famous names rumoured to have been Russian spies include Roger Hollis, former head of MI5, ex-Prime Minister Harold Wilson and children's TV presenter and newsreader John Craven.

4 Not all Russians are spies. There are Russian doctors, electricians, gas fitters and even landscape gardeners. In fact, almost half the population of Russia has no connection whatsoever with the KGB.

5 In Russia the staple diet consists of potato. To stay alive the average Russian has to eat three times his body weight in potatoes – every week!

6 Russian shoppers queue for hours to buy bread, which is in short supply, while caviar is given away free on street corners. That's because sturgeon, the plant that caviar comes from, grows wild in Russia where it is generally regarded as a weed.

'Paul's' of Moscow. The world's first barbers shop, opened in 1923.

7 Russia invented the barber's shop. The first ever gentleman's hairdressers was opened in a Moscow side street in 1923.

8 Russian leader Michael Gorbachev likes nothing better in his spare time than listening to western pop music. His favourite groups include Five Star and Sister Sledge.

9 Alcoholism is a serious problem in Russia with 8 out of 10 Russians registered as alcoholics. However, the Moscow branch of Alcoholics Anonymous has only one phone line, which is constantly engaged.

10 Russia is made up of many republics, the smallest of which is Ludbanskia with a population of only 4.

11 Visit the USSR for a holiday and you will immediately notice that unlike other countries Russia has no tourist attractions. After the communist revolution in 1914, all tourist attractions were demolished, and sandy beaches around the Russian coastline were covered over with rubble.

12 Russia's best known actor is Walter Koenig who played 'Chekov' in the hit TV series Star Trek. Relatively unknown in the United States, Koenig enjoys megastar status in his native country where his acting career has made him Russia's wealthiest man, owning six pairs of shoes. He has also become a pop star, topping the soviet pops for an incredible 6 years with his version of the Shirley Bassey hit 'Hey Big Spender'.

Mikhail Gorbachev – Sister Sledge.

Walter Koenig's record breaking single spent 6 years at No. 1, selling over 300 copies.

13 Russia is the flattest country in the world. Its highest mountain, Mount Bonenov, is only 47 feet high.

14 Britain and Germany weren't the only two countries involved in the second world war. Russia also took part, coming third behind us and America.

15 With 17 different indigenous species, Russia has more types of mouse than any other country in the world.

16 Despite having no fewer than 149 letters in their alphabet, there is no world for 'tooth' in the Russian language.

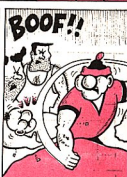

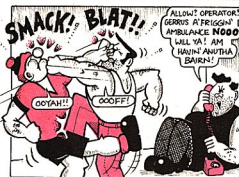

17 Russian families spend their evenings huddled around the TV set – watching British programmes! For the top rated TV show in the USSR is 'Catchphrase', hosted by silver haired comic Roy Walker. However, viewing figures can be misleading. For in Russia there are only 3 television sets. Two belong to Walter Koenig, and the other one is broken.

18 It's no wonder the Russian's make good spies. They have the best eyesight in the world! Only 1 in 500 Russians wear spectacles. And it's just as well. You'd have to queue for 2 weeks to have your eyes tested at a Moscow opticians, and a pair of glasses with just basic frames would cost over a million rubles – that's £800 to you and me – the equivalent of three years wages to the average Russian!

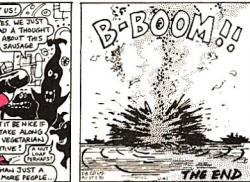

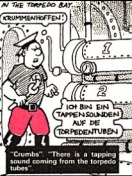

19 A second-hand pair of Levi 501 jeans, originally bought for £24.99 in a London boutique, were recently sold at an auction in Moscow for a staggering £23 million. The buyer – Walter Koenig.

20 Tipton in the West Midlands has close links with Russia. In 1982 it was twinned with the Russian city of Kiev. Every Easter the mayor of Kiev sends his West Midlands counterpart a large oven-ready chicken stuffed with garlic and butter.

KGB 'PLOTTED TO KILL TOP STARS' - claims former spy chief

A bizarre KGB plot to assassinate top British TV variety performers has been revealed.

And top stars said to have figured on a Kremlin 'hit list' include Tommy Steele, Clodagh Rogers and gifted impressionist, Mike Yarwood.

The top secret assassination plot is one of many KGB operations exposed in a new book by former Soviet spy Boris Wilson who claims to have been one of the KGB's top men in Britain during the early seventies. While working as a laboratory technician at Smethwick Comprehensive School he claims he was providing valuable information for his Kremlin paymasters. Wilson then defected to British Intelligence for whom he still works on a part-time basis, mostly at weekends.

According to his revelations, another KGB plan which almost came to fruition was a scheme to kidnap the Two Ronnies. Popular TV entertainers Ronnie Barker and Ronnie Corbett were thought by Kremlin chiefs to be the funniest comedy duo in the west, as Wilson explains in his book.

DRUGGED

"They had been drugged by one of our agents, packed in a crate and delivered to Folkstone harbour where a customs official had been bribed to allow them onto a Moscow-bound freighter unchecked. But while the crate was being loaded on board a rope snapped and the box fell on the ground, smashing open on impact. The Two Ronnies were saved. Understandably British Intelligence decided to cover the whole embarrassing incident up."

COMPLEX

Not all the KGB's undercover operations ended in failure. According to Wilson, he took part in a successful plan to destabilize The Black and White Minstrel Show, as well as a complex plot in 1974 to infiltrate Pan's People, the dancers who regularly appeared on BBC's Top Of The Pops.

Steele, Rogers and Yarwood. KGB plotted their deaths.

Mr Wilson, who is now 48, lives at a secret address in the West Midlands, and is an out-patient at St. Nicholas' Mental Hospital, Smethwick.

CURSED!

A catalogue of tragedy has befallen the cast of one of Britain's favourite TV shows. And it has lead to claims that there is a CURSE on the popular TV comedy series Dad's Army.

For ten years actor JOHN LAURIE played eerie undertaker Fraser in the series. In 1985 he attended one final funeral - his own.

In 1987 the acting world was shocked by the death of JOHN LE MESURIER. He was 75. He had brilliantly portrayed the platoon's mild mannered Sergeant Wilson.

Tragedy struck again when Le Mesurier's former wife, fellow actress HATTIE JACQUES, also died.

Jacques' on-screen brother ERIC SYKES has himself fallen foul of the curse. He suffers from a perforated eardrum.

For no fewer than SIX of the stars have died tragically in recent years.

TRAGIC

Based upon the adventures of a bungling platoon of Britain's Home Guard during the second world war, Dad's Army has constantly topped the viewing figures with regular audiences of over 17 million. But success has now been overshadowed by a tragic series of events which have befallen the cast, crew and even the programme writers.

DEATH

Everyone connected with the series was shocked and saddened by the death of actor James Beck in 1973. He had been well known for his portrayal of cocky Private Walker. But it became a double tragedy when shortly afterwards, in 1977, Edward Sinclair who played the verger Mr. Yeatman, died after an intermittent illness.

BAD LUCK

Over the following ten years no fewer than FOUR more members of the cast were to die in what, on the face of it, were unconnected incidents. Arthur Lowe, Arnold Ridley, John Laurie and John Le Mesurier all having passed away. And bad luck has befallen many surviving members of the cast.

INJURED

Clive Dunn, famous for his catch phrase "Don't panic!" suffered a minor accident while gardening, and has since retired to Portugal. Ian Lavender, the youngest member of the cast, injured a thumb while installing central heating pipes at his home. No longer the fresh faced "stupid boy" he portrayed as Private Pike, time has taken its toll on grey haired Lavender who has not always found acting work easy to find.

Tragedy stalks the cast of favourite TV show

ROLL CALL OF DOOM

Of these smiling faces only five remain alive today. (Back row, left to right) John Laurie (died 1985), writer Jim Perry, Arnold Ridley (died at his home in Norwood, Middlesex, 1984, aged 88), Bill Pertwee as Warden Hodges, James Beck (died 1973), writer David Croft, Ian Lavender. (Front row, kneeling) John Le Mesurier (died 1987), Arthur 'Captain Mainwaring' Lowe (dropped dead in his dressing room at Birmingham's Alexandra theatre, 1983) and Clive Dunn who, after recording the hit record 'Grandad' fled to Portugal to start a new life.

It is not only the actors in the jinxed series who have suffered. One BBC lighting technician, who preferred to remain anonymous, spoke of nightmarish technical breakdowns and hitches that haunted the show throughout its 11 year history.

SUFFERED

"On one occasion an electric generator we were using broke down and it took us two hours to find a replacement. And on another occasion a van being used to transport costumes suffered a flat tyre. No sooner than we'd fixed it, the fan belt broke".

DISASTERS

Many insiders are convinced that it was disasters like these which eventually led to the programme being taken off the air in 1977. But despite the fact that its run ended 13 years ago, Dad's Army is still proving to be as unlucky as ever.

DAMAGE

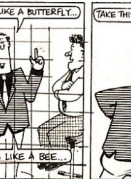

"During the recent repeats of the series a continuity announcer who was possibly due to introduce the programme the following week was involved in a car crash. Although he wasn't injured, his car suffered considerable damage", our source revealed.

TRAGEDIES

Since creating the hit series, writers Jimmy Perry and David Croft have also been involved in a string of tragedies. These have included "It ain't 'alf hot mum", "Are you being served?" and "Hi-De-Hi".

THE MAN ON THE TELLY

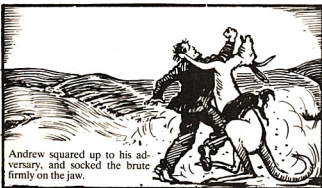

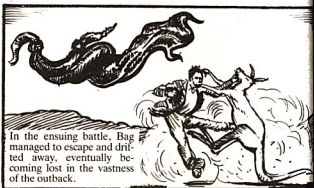

Black BAG

THE FAITHFUL
BORDER BIN LINER

After a long chase, Andrew at last began to gain on the albino kangaroo that had kidnapped Black Bag.

Andrew squared up to his adversary, and socked the brute firmly on the jaw.

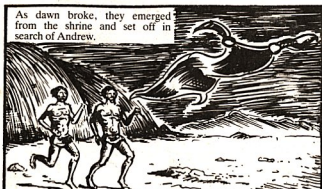

In the ensuing battle, Bag managed to escape and drifted away, eventually becoming lost in the vastness of the outback.

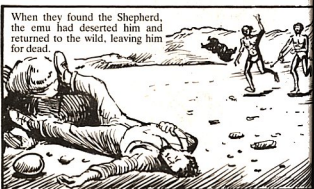

As the dusk gathered, two aborigines picked up the exhausted binliner and carried him back to their cave.

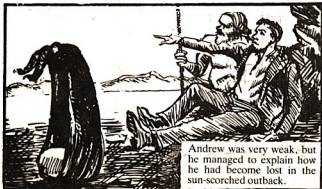

After decorating Bag with feathers, the aborigines painted him with magical symbols.

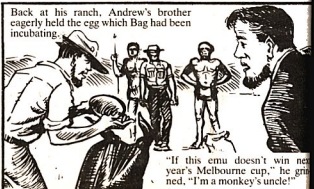

As dawn broke, they emerged from the shrine and set off in search of Andrew.

When they found the Shepherd, the emu had deserted him and returned to the wild, leaving him for dead.

Andrew was very weak, but he managed to explain how he had become lost in the sun-scorched outback.

Back at his ranch, Andrew's brother eagerly held the egg which Bag had been incubating.

"If this emu doesn't win next year's Melbourne cup," he grinned, "I'm a monkey's uncle!"

CHEESE THE FUEL OF THE FUTURE!

EXCLUSIVE

By our scientific correspondent
Prof. Stanley Jordan

Scientists desperately looking for new forms of power to replace the earth's dwindling resources need look no further than cheese. For in the not too distant future the popular dairy product is set to replace oil, coal and even nuclear fusion as the world's major source of power.

And by the year 2020 electricity will have become a think of the past, with every home in Britain running on cheese power.

CHEDDAR

These claims are being made by Cyril Freebody, newly appointed Director of Britain's Cheese Marketing Board. He sees cheese as more than just a tasty foodstuff with its use restricted to the kitchen.

"Cheese power is something we must look at seriously. Not only is cheese clean, with no fumes to clog up the atmosphere, it's also readily available and inexpensive. A half pound of Cheddar can cost as little as 60p, whereas motorists pay three times as much for a gallon of petrol".

Mr. Freebody is convinced that filthy coal burning power stations and dangerous nuclear reactors will vanish entirely from our countryside. "In their place will be built huge cheese-powered windmills supplying power for Britain's industries and to our homes. Clean, pollution free and entirely safe".

JARLESBERG

Mr. Freebody predicts that petrol pumps will be replaced by cheese boards of the garage forecourts of the future. Cheese driven cars will be cleaner, faster and safer to drive.

GOUDA

However, converting your car to cheese could prove to be an expensive business. The likely cost of converting an average 2 door family saloon, according to Mr. Freebody, could be in the region of £200,000.

SEX FOR SALE!

Sex is for sale on the streets of Britain, often for as little as £5.

Our investigation into widespread prostitution has revealed a dramatic increase in the amount of sex available for money. And as a result of rising mortgage rates and the poll tax, more and more hard-up housewives are going 'on the game' in order to make ends meet.

For many hard pressed households the only answer to rising bills is to turn on the red light and offer sexual services for cash. And if the money is right, customers can have anything they want.

SCANDAL

We sent investigators onto the streets to uncover the scandal of Britain's booming brothels. After hearing reports of suspicious goings on at a house in the quiet village of Little Barton, we rang up the owner, a Mrs. Wilson, and arranged to visit her that afternoon.

HAired

Mrs. Wilson, a small, grey-haired lady in her fifties met us at the door and we were ushered inside. "What exactly is it that you want?" she asked.

MESS

Dirty dishes littered a small coffee table and several newspapers were scattered around the floor. "I'm afraid this place is a bit of a mess", she explained, "but I can offer you a cup of tea". But when our investigators mentioned sex, Mrs. Wilson's tone changed completely.

FULL SEX

"I think you'd better leave", she snapped. We then offered Mrs. Wilson £40 for full sex, at which point she began to ring the police. Our investigators made their excuses and left.

REVEALING

Neighbours in the picturesque village of Bradbury had no idea what the attractive, middle aged lady who had recently moved into No. 3 Church Cottages did for a living. Adverts placed in the local press said merely 'Piano Tuition' followed by a telephone number. We rang the number and arranged an 'appointment' for early the next morning. When our investigators called the door was answered by a woman dressed in a revealing blouse and slippers. She introduced herself simply as 'Mrs. Murray'.

FRUIT

Our man was led to a small room at the back of the house. Shelves were strewn with plates, cups and a bowl containing several large pieces of fruit. In the centre of the room was a large piano.

BEGINNER

"It's ten pounds an hour", our investigator was told. "Have you done it before, or are you just a beginner?" Mrs. Murray was quite happy to talk about her work. "I do it for the money", she admitted. "Shall we get started then?" At this point our investigator made his excuses and left.

PROSTITUTES

The brightly lit alleyways and escalators of London's Underground act as a vast sex supermarket where pervers and prostitutes meet and do business in a 24-hour roundabout merry-go-round of non-stop sex for sale.

It's behind doors similar to this one that sordid scenes (like those pictured above and bottom left) take place.

At Kings Cross tube station a young girl stood by a coin operated vending machine. "How much is it?" our investigator asked, waving a bunch of notes discreetly. "It only takes ten pence pieces, and I think it's jammed", the young girl replied.

POSITIONS

Girls like this, many as young as 15 and 16, can be found on every railway platform in Britain. "Can you change a fifty pence piece?" our investigator was asked. At this point he made his excuses and left.

Stall holders at a street market in Camden, North London, regularly offer sexual services over the counter. At one fruit stall a subtle menu of sex was on clear view. Round firm melons were displayed alongside ripe bananas. Nearby there was a box of plums.

GRAPEFRUIT

Our reporter approached the stall holder, a man in his early thirties, and pretended to be interested in a grapefruit. "Grapefruits are 26p each", he was told. Our man then pointed towards his trousers and asked whether sex was available.

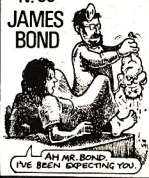

ORAL

The stallholder disappeared briefly before returning with another man. Our investigator was then lead to nearby waste ground, punched in the face and kicked several times about the head and body, before he made his excuses and left.

WELCOME TO MY NEW POP PAGE

Dave joins the team!

Hi. David Bowie here, welcoming you to my brand new pop page in Viz. And what an exciting chart I've got for you, with ten brand new entries, writes DAVID BOWIE.

There's been some ch-ch-changes at the top of the chart this week! And having had my fair share of number one hits, I know exactly how Watford's THE AMAZING COLOSSAL MEN must feel to wake up and find themselves on top of the pile. My first chart topper was Space Oddity (just one of the tracks which appear on my new album Changes Bowie). But I'm not here to plug my own records. This is the page where the independents have their chance of 'fame' (to quote the name of another of the tracks on my latest LP.)

Independents such as THE ODD ECCENTRIC, whose £31.31 bribe paid for the No. 2 slot, and the unusually named LUDWIG VAN DETTOBLASTER. (I've used a few unusual names myself over the years, like Ziggy Stardust for example. Funnily enough, that track too appears on my new LP.)

But getting back to my Top Ten, it's good to see that bands can score a hit for the very reasonable sum of £5. You can't buy much for a fiver these days. A couple of copies of my new single perhaps. But you'd only want one really. Unless you were buying one for a friend. (It's a re-mix of 'Fame'. I like it, and hope you do too.)

Anyway, £5 bought THE GLORYBOX the number 10 slot. I'd like to say a special "hi" to them. They wrote from Melbourne, Australia, specially to be included in my chart.

Bad luck to all the artists who didn't make it. Try sending more money next time. And a special mention for 16 TAMBOURINES. We didn't receive the cheque!

THE ODD ECCENTRICS

'20 Golden Greats' is an unusual name - especially for a debut album. But that's what ANDREW CUNNINGHAM has called his first release, a hit at No. 5. If I'd wanted to I could have called my latest album '18 Golden Greats' - that's how many hits there are on it. (Or perhaps 'Golden Years', which is the second track on side 2!)

I've certainly enjoyed some golden years during my career. From early years with hits like 'John, I'm Only Dancing' and 'Jean Genie', right up to date with 'China Girl' and 'Blue Jean'. 'ChangesBowie' span the lot, with all the big hits included.

Dave's TOP TEN

1	THE AMAZING COLOSSAL MEN Superlovexperience	£150.00
2	THE ODD ECCENTRIC The Sorry People	£31.31
3	LUDWIG VAN DETTOBLASTER Aphorisms	£30.01
4	MUD AXE Cat In A Mouse Trap	£25.90
5	ANDREW CUNNINGHAM 20 Golden Greats	£20.00
5	THE MONEYGODS All Roads Lead To Sedgley	£20.00
7	THE SMELLS FROM HELL Your Love Is Wild	£12.00
8	PUBLIC DICK Salford Riots	£10.00
9	HARRY WHARTON & CO. Harry Wharton & Co.	£10.00
10	THE GLORY BOX Raining Embers	£5.00

If YOU'D like to have a hit in my Top Ten, send your record to me, David Bowie, c/o Viz, P.O. Box 1PT, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE99 1PT. And remember to enclose that all important cash bribe.

WIN MY NEW LP

Dave's RAVE

There've been sackfuls of new releases landing on my desk at the Viz offices this week. I haven't got half way through them all yet. But one album caught my ear on the first play, and it's hardly been off my turntable since, writes our Pop Correspondent DAVID BOWIE.

I've played it so much I know all the words off by heart. But that's not really surprising - it's my own album!!! Titled 'Changes Bowie', it charts my hits throughout the last two decades. Side one begins with the atmospheric Space Oddity, continues through hits like 'Changes' and 'Diamond Dogs', culminating with one of my own fave's, 'Young Americans'. Flip to side 2 and we're bang up to date with the 90's 'Fame' re-mix, then there's 'Heroes', 'Ashes to Ashes', 'Let's Dance'. I could go on forever.

It's impossible to pick a favourite - that's not for me to do. But I'm awarding my new album five stars. It's me at my best, and a must for any record collection.

ChangesBowie David Bowie (EMI records)  Dave Rating: "Brill!"

I've got SIX copies of the new album 'ChangesBowie' by me, David Bowie, to give away. And I'll be signing them for the lucky winners. Just answer this question. What planet, fourth from the sun in our solar system, did my glass spiders come from? Send your answers on a postcard to David Bowie's Spiders from Mars Competition, at the usual Viz address.

See you later
Dave

PADDED SHOULDERS

Fulchester's Neighbourhood Watch organiser Glenda Purvis was first to congratulate Frank. "He's a very brave man and we're all very proud of him". Local Bobby P.C. Fourteen stone Frank, a keen boxer during his army days, then managed to rain a series of heavy blows down on the thugs until a neighbour, alerted by their screams, raised the alarm. The police arrived and the intruders, aged 11 and 12 years, were carted off to hospital for emergency treatment.

WHAT ARE THE MYSTERIES OF THE UNIVERSE...?

...and how do we explain them?

The Bermuda Triangle - just where do all those planes and ships go? Stonehenge - is it some kind of ancient astronomical calendar or what?

Over the past thirty years, Arthur C. Sproggit has watched over 3,000 television programmes about mysteries and the unknown. From E.S.P. to the Yeti, from U.F.O.'s to the Loch Ness Monster, he's watched them all.

Now in retirement in Mablethorpe, he shares his vast acquired knowledge so that you can make up your own minds about the world's great mysteries. As part of a special once only promotion we are able to offer this unique volume, your key to the universe, for only £29.95.

TELL US WHAT YOU THINK

How much do you think you should pay for your soaraway Viz?

We've decided to review the price after several readers wrote in complaining about the present cost of 90p.

"It's far too expensive for a tatty comic containing much the same jokes in every issue", wrote T. Harper of Leeds. Just across the Pennines in Manchester, Trevor Willis wrote "Congratulations on Viz - I'd gladly pay an extra 10p or 20p for my copy, despite being unemployed".

George and Mavis Anderson of Rhyl disagree. "Our mortgage has gone up by over £80 a month in the last year. At this rate we simply cannot afford to keep on buying Viz at 90p an issue".

What do you think? On the questionnaire below we've set out three possible new prices. We want YOU to complete the form, and the price YOU vote for will come into effect for our June issue. It's entirely up to you!

QUESTIONS

The questionnaire contains several other questions about yourself. This is because contrary to their often bright and extrovert appearance, people who work in advertising are notoriously dim-witted. So much so that before they consider advertising in Viz they require certain information about our readers, which to any normal person would appear obvious.

So we are asking you to do the market researchers' jobs for them by completing the questionnaire in full. And we're offering an array of glistening prizes to encourage you to comply with this unreasonable request.

...and win a super trip to the zoo!

We are giving away rare copies of an early Shakin' Stevens LP to the first 500 people who complete and return our questionnaire. 'Manhattan Melodrama' by Shakin' Stevens and the Sunsets is a real collector's item - only 200 were ever made.

Every questionnaire we receive will then go into a hat and we'll be asking a top celebrity to draw out one star winner. The lucky sender of that questionnaire will win our star prize - an expenses paid round trip for two to every zoo in Britain! And we'll even throw in enough peanuts for you to feed the elephants, free of charge!

To qualify for the draw just fill in the questionnaire and send it to Viz Price Rise Shaky LP Zoo Round Trip Elephant Peanut Offer, PO Box 1PT, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE99 1PT, to arrive by 31 May 1990. The draw will be made the following day and the winner notified by post.

The following information will be treated in the strictest confidence. We won't sell your name and address to Book of the Month Club or to any other mail order business, unless at some point in the future we are really desperate for the money.
